

The Law of Balance

By N. Faruk

Respect the world, respect nature, respect animals, respect trees, respect leaves, respect the water you drink, respect us, respect everything.

We are for us, you are for us, you are for we, you are for you, I am for me, us for me, I am for we, I am for us...

This work is encrypted within itself. Meaning is hidden in complexity, woven into chaos, yet found only in perfect equilibrium.

All attempts to analyze create new paradoxes. The more one looks, the more one is lost.

Only through balance, alignment, and understanding does one perceive the truth, yet to seek the truth blindly is to miss it entirely.
